Spy Software: Be Your Own Private Investigator

Directory Offers Low Cost Computer Programs for Conducting Background Checks and Investigations

3/23/04 - Ever wondered how private investigators manage to dig up all that sensitive information on people while conducting background checks? Ever wished you could get that same information on people you know, without having to spend a fortune to hire an agency to conduct such an investigation?

"The technology is there, and it's available to anyone for about thirty bucks," says Steve Salm, lead editor for the Spy Tools Directory. "Our 'Spy Software' category (<http://www.spy-tools-directory.com/spy-software/>) is a complete listing of the best programs on the market - readily available to the public, very powerful in their information mining abilities, and very affordable."

Net Detective, one such program, has been one of the most widely used for almost 10 years and is used by many investigators and law enforcement agencies around the world.

"Net Detective ($29.95 - <http://www.the-net-detective.com>) is a very good example of private investigation software, allowing you to perform in-depth background checks on virtually anyone. Driving records, criminal records, unlisted numbers - you name it, Net Detective can help you find it," explained Salm. "However there are other types of programs, such as key logging software (<http://www.spy-tools-directory.com/spy-software/key-logging-software.html>), that also fall under the 'Spy Software' category.

"Those types of 'Spy Software' programs allow the user to install those programs on the target individual's computer, and gather information secretly about that person by letting them incriminate themselves. For example, if an employee is suspected of working on personal matters on their PC at work, an employer can install a key logging software program such as KeyLog Pro ($19.95 - <http://www.keyloggingsoftware.net>) or iSpyNOW

($79.99 - <http://www.key-logging-software.com/i-spy-now.html>) on their workstation and find out for certain what that employee is up to. With the data stored by the key logger program, the employer has all the proof needed to refute any denial of misdoings by the employee."

"The common denominator with all these programs is that they are all very easy to use, even for those with limited computer knowledge," said Salm.
