Catch A Predator With Chat Logger Software

Private Investigation Resource Site Urges Parents To Be Aware of Their Child's Activity Online

06/26/06 - With recent headlines and news shows featuring stories about catching online predators in chat rooms, online private investigation resource Spy Tools Directory urges parents to consider looking into chat logger software (<http://www.spy-tools-directory.com/spy-software/chat-logger-software.html>) as a means to keep tabs on their child's activity online.

"These online predators are out there, as we've all seen on these news shows," said Steve Salm, lead editor for the directory. "Kids are online talking to them, and in some cases, arranging to meet with them. For a parent who has no clue what's going on, it's a terrifying scenario."

One of the best ways for parents to make sure a child is not in danger is to keep tabs on them by installing chat logger software on all the computers used. Chat logger software is a hidden program that runs completely undetected by the user, yet records every single keystroke typed into the computer and every incoming message received as a chat log file. The chat logs can then be retrieved by the parent for review to find out if they suspect their child is communicating with one of these online predators.

"These types of programs are the same ones used on the news shows you've been seeing," continued Salm. "They can be used to record instant messages, emails, chat room, and MySpace activity - everything. The chat logs are password protected, so only the parent can retrieve them, and the programs run virtually undetectable so even the most computer savvy of teenagers won't know it's running on their computer."

Also known as keylogger or key logging software, good chat logger software programs range in price from as low as $20, which makes them an affordable online security option for most every parent.
